Points To Ponder...

"How often do you check your email? Is it as often as looking for the level of high octane fuel in your rumbler?"

Regular visits to your email server, like paying attention to the level of fuel in your ride, can save you some pretty awkward moments. Take the case of the cruise organizer that failed to heed the warnings of both his fellow cruisers and beloved girlfriend. Casually pushing his ride into its parking spot he masked the fact that the car had run out of gas with Fonzi like movements. The quick and decisive actions of his sidekicks saved the day by cleverly disguising the addition of food to the beast.

This same guy recently learned a valuable lesson in the use of email media when he neglected to check his email (having his parents over for lunch is a lame excuse) after sending out an early invitation. Assuming all of the responses had arrived he made other plans; the ringing doorbell, promptly at 4:30, led to the discovery of hot rodders eagerly waiting in the driveway. Only the good nature of the disappointed guests saved the host from a huge embarrassment.

Cruise to Lakeland...

We are organizing a cruise to Lakeland on Saturday January 24, 2002. Meet in our driveway at 4:30 PM for pre-drive digital pictures. We've been to this event once before and had a nice dinner in a local restaurant that serves beer and wine (unlike Plant City). Historic Munn Park serves as the locale and as the music drifts through the unburnt fuel, we can check out the other nice rides. It's not a huge draw but the food and quality of the cars make it worthwhile. Besides, the entrance back onto the highway towards home, affords an opportunity to open up the back barrels for a nice stretch out.

Kumquat Festival...

We've entered the Nova into a competitive car show being held at the Dade City Courthouse on Saturday January 31, 2004. It's rumored that the beautiful T-Bird might participate as well. If interested, contact me and I'll forward the entry form to your email.

Highlights:

- Points to ponder.
- Cruise to Lakeland on the 4th Saturday of each month.
- Kumquat Festival Car Show.
